Hej, I'm Marvin. Living and working in different countries has shaped me into an open-minded, adaptable, and reliable person. I'm positive and calm, I love sports, football most of all, and I genuinely enjoy being around people.

What pulls me in is building and improving systems: understanding how something works underneath, shaping the workflows and structure around it, and increasingly how AI fits into all of it. I'm always trying to optimise how I work, and most of my projects grew straight out of that, because I move fast and like turning ideas into something real.

PROJECTS

Right now I'm studying full-time, but my own projects are where most of my energy and time goes. I've built an AI coding companion and an automated AI news site, and now it's all about Pitch Your Game. From apps and systems to learning tools, I design the system and context around AI to make it actually useful. The full picture is on my site, so that's the best way to really get to know me.
